

Alex Withrow, OTD/S, CNP; Faculty Mentor: Michael Ang, OTD, OTR/L, CNS; Site Mentor: Nicole Shoraka, OTR/L

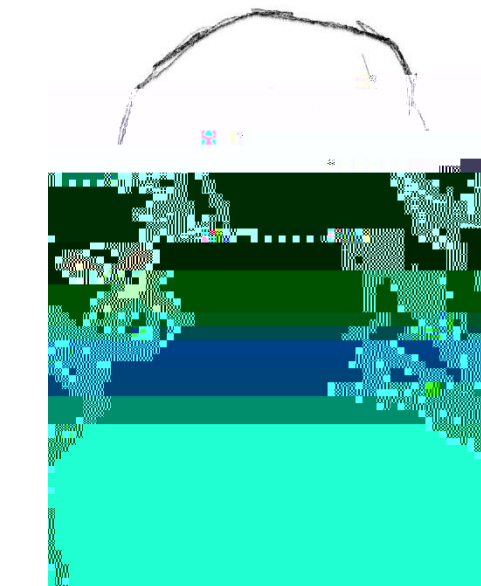

99 pages

Evaluations, re-evaluations, treatments

Primary conditions and relevant medical histories

Feedback

Creative component (related digital illustrations – see below)

Donald P. Jones, PhD, M.Ed.,
University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
Center for Workplace Well-being
DEPARTMENT

Burnout is becoming increasingly prevalent healthcare. Without large-scale, systemic efforts toward positive change, the health and well-being of healthcare workers will suffer detrimental consequences. Future research should explore:

- Effects of workplace wellness programs on occupation engagement among rehab specialists in the United States.
- Occupations as a part of the workplace